FDA Food Facility Registration is required under laws created by both the Bioterrorism Act of 2003 and Food Safety Modernization Act (FSMA) of 2011 (effective in November, 2015). Boiling maple sap to create maple syrup has been defined by FDA as an act of processing, therefore most maple syrup producers are required to register.

- Registration is FREE – absolutely do not pay for registration. Several websites exist that will charge for a registration service, they may appear at the top of an internet search for “food facility registration”.
- Registration is a two-step process:
 - First set up an account (save your account ID and password for future renewals)
 - Second submit a registration (keep account number and PIN for your records)
- Registration must be renewed every two-years; by Dec. 31 of every even numbered year.
